Your story	I live west of Kempsey for the last 28 years on property, and I have watched the fuel get larger and larger in all the bushland and more so the national parks and government owned land. supposedly locked up to preserve the bush and wild life. we have needed controlled burns for many years, now the fires have killed off many millions of the so called protected wild life. the government needs to listen more to people who live in the bush , not the inner city greens who think they know what is needed for existence in the country.
1.1 Causes and contributing factors	locked up national parks
1.2 Preparation and planning	management not locked up

1.3 Response to bushfires

we can control the intensity by managing the forest letting cattle graze and cool fires in winter

1.4 Any other matters learn to adapt to our climate that has been changing for 4.5 billion years
