1.1 Causes and contributing factors

It is plain for all to see , the enormous build up of fuel in the forests and National Parks that has been allowed to grow since Bob Carr closed the forest access and some fire trails.

I have just read a book called the Biggest Estate on Earth, by Bill Gammage , which shows in great detail, the way in which the aboriginal people kept the landscape under control. and reduced the fuel load.

Perhaps obtain several large fire fighting planes and hit fires hard before they grow out of control.

Fires were here long before climate change.
